

Business Playbook

NOVEMBER 5, 2026 | CARY, NC

Jack Bailey

Jack Bailey is the former CEO and President of G1 Therapeutics, a commercial-stage oncology company based in Research Triangle Park. G1 Therapeutics was acquired in Q3 of 2024.

Prior to becoming CEO of G1 Therapeutics, Bailey spent 12-years at GSK, finishing his career as President of the U.S. Before joining GSK, Bailey had a successful 18-year career at Eli Lilly & Company where he rose to Senior Vice-President in charge of numerous different therapeutic business units.

Bailey received his undergraduate degree in biology from Hobart College in Geneva, NY, followed by getting his MBA from UNC-Kenan Flagler School of Business. Bailey's previous industry-related board roles include serving on the board of EMERGO, an RTP-based biotechnology company, being a member of the T.H. Chan School of Public Health Advisory Board at Harvard University, the industry trade association PhRMA, the UNC Eshelman Institute of Innovation, the North Carolina Biotechnology Center and the NC Chamber.

Bailey currently serves on the board of the UNC Health System and the board of North Carolina Children's Hospital. He is also an Advisor to Cape Fear BioCapital, a North Carolina-focused early-stage life sciences venture capital firm.