

Education & Workforce Conference

AUGUST 4, 2026
RALEIGH, NC

Vincent Ginski
Senior Director of Workforce Competitiveness
NC Chamber Foundation

Vincent Ginski is the NC Chamber Foundation's senior director of workforce competitiveness, responsible for driving the workforce portfolio issues outlined in NC Leads, the Foundation's five-year strategic plan. Through this plan, work is focused on advancing three core priorities: removing barriers to employment through policy innovation, closing the job supply-and-demand gap by scaling proven employer-led and community-based models, and addressing acute worker shortages through high-impact solutions that can be replicated statewide.

Ginski plays a key role in advancing the Foundation's multi-pronged approach to workforce competitiveness. He is at the forefront of advancing employer-led solutions under the U.S. Chamber's Talent Pipeline Management (TPM) framework—helping North Carolina communities aggregate data on critical industries, align education and training programs, and implement replicable strategies that tap every source of available talent.

A Fellow and Faculty Member of the U.S. Chamber of Commerce Foundation's Talent Pipeline Management program and a recognized talent finance innovator, Ginski brings a proven track record of leading cross-sector initiatives designed to enhance regional economic competitiveness. Working closely with the NC Chamber Foundation President, he provides counsel on education and talent public policy.

A graduate of Belmont Abbey's Honors College and the MBA program in Charlotte, Vincent frequently speaks at workforce conferences, serves as a guest lecturer for various institutions, and mentors early-career professionals. He, his wife, Alexis, and their daughter, Flannery, call Gaston County, NC, home.
