Bernadette Joy

Bernadette Joy is a nationally recognized money expert featured on Good Morning America, NBC News, Time and USA Today for her unique ability to inspire her audience to explore the intersection between net worth and self-worth.

While she has two degrees in business and a degree in psychology, her credibility comes from truly leading by example. As first-generation Filipino Americans, she and her husband AJ paid off a whopping $300,000 of debt in three years AND grew their first $1 million of net worth in their thirties. Not one dime was inherited, while transitioning from a decade as a corporate HR professional to a six-figure business owner.

She founded the Crush Your Money Goals® Academy for those overlooked and underestimated by traditional financial services. She will teach you everything you wish you knew about money, and the confidence to manage yours well.

Once you hear her speak, you'll grow confidence to make financial independence a reality, and a clear blueprint to help you get there.
