Amy Wartham
Director of Corporate and Custom Training
UNC Charlotte

Amy Wartham is the Director of Corporate and Custom Training at UNC Charlotte and works with some of Charlotte's largest organizations assessing and managing their specific workforce training needs. She has been at UNC Charlotte for over 22 years.

Amy has previously served as a lecturer and academic advisor in the Belk College of Business at UNC Charlotte and as a Marketing and Management instructor at Central Piedmont Community College. Owing to her significant experience in various aspects of adult learning and corporate training, Amy has mastered the ability of establishing and building positive relationships with corporate clients and all levels of management, through her excellent communication skills along with successful negotiations, presentations, effective training methodologies and written communications. Amy's keen business insight and expertise in ascertaining and analyzing needs, streamlining operations and envisioning future goals and processes, have played a pivotal role in the success of her department.

Amy completed her B.S. and master's in business administration from Winthrop University and specializes in the areas of business communications, emotional intelligence, organization development, teambuilding, leadership and change management.

In 2020, The Charlotte Business Journal named Amy as one of Charlotte's Top 25 Women in Business leaders. Charlotte Business Leader Magazine named Amy as one of Charlotte's "Mover and Shakers" in 2008 and in 2009 she was named as one of Charlotte's "Women Extraordinaire." In addition, in 2011 and in 2014, the Mecklenburg Times named Amy as one of Charlotte's "50 Most Influential Women." Amy is a member of the Charlotte Chamber of Commerce Workforce Development and Talent Committee, a member of the Charlotte Chapter of the Association of Talent Development (ATD) and the University Professional Continuing Education Association (UPCEA).
