Mr. Togni is a partner in the Firm's International Trade Group, resident in both the Charlotte and Washington, D.C. offices. He represents clients in international trade law and policy matters, including customs compliance and investigations, trade remedy proceedings and related appeals, and export controls. Mr. Togni is a trusted customs advisor to clients in matters ranging from multi-year, comprehensive focused assessment (audit) proceedings, civil and criminal investigations, to a variety of other customs matters including numerous prior disclosures, ruling requests, and client advocacy before senior CBP officials. Mr. Togni's work includes appeals before the U.S. Court of International Trade regarding customs and trade remedy matters. Mr. Togni also counsels clients on emerging trends regarding Buy American Act and supply chain security initiatives, including the prohibition on imports of forced labor goods that is enforced at the border by U.S. Customs and Border Protection.
